

{ GINNIE YOO to BRIAN YOO }

6.13.09

Ginnie and Brian were childhood friends who first met in the sixth grade in Korea. Soon after, Brian moved back to the states, but they always remained friends. They reconnected in college (she was at Purdue in Indiana and he at Northwestern in neighboring Illinois) and maintained a successful long-distance romance. Ultimately Ginnie moved to Boston to be closer to Brian.

Although they loved living in Boston, as soon as the couple started planning their wedding, they knew a city wedding did not match their own style. Once Ginnie and Brian visited Castle Hill on The Crane Estate (a 59-room Stuart-style mansion on over 2,100 acres overlooking the ocean), they fell in love with the property and booked it right away.

Gorgeous arrangements of hydrangea, gardenia, peonies, and orchids in a soft palette of cream and green created a stunning accent for the elegant surrounding. “Everything was perfect,” recalls Ginnie. “It rained up until the day before the wedding, but our day was perfect—not a cloud in the sky. We were surrounded by the people we love and care most about on a beautiful day!”
